Dear John:

Pursuant to its authority under the President John F. Kennedy Assassination Records Collection Act of 1992, the Assassination Records Review Board requests that you provide us with descriptive information regarding the "Interagency Source Register" cited in the attached document.

Would you please explain the principal function of the Interagency Source Register and provide some basic background information, including when it began functioning, the purpose for which was created, which entity or entities in the intelligence community were responsible for operating it, and which entity or entities in the intelligence community made use of it. To the extent that the Register may have been discontinued during the 1958-1965 period, we would like to know why and what type of system replaced it (if any).

In addition, would you please identify the documents to which you refer in drafting your response.

This request should be interpreted in its broadest reasonable sense. To the extent that you are not certain whether certain information comes under the scope of this request, please let us know and we can advise you whether we seek to include it. Should this request impose an unreasonable burden on you that we may have not anticipated, please advise us so that we can work with you to modify or amend the request accordingly.

CIA will make available those histories that are of obvious relevance, and will raise with Review Board staff any questions regarding the requests where the basis for the request is unclear. CIA will begin to make histories available on a rolling basis. Review Board has agreed to review histories promptly once they are made available. Although it was not discussed at our meeting, we would very much appreciate it if you would, within the next two weeks, identify which histories you are prepared to make available and those that CIA believes should be subject to further discussions.

Re: (U) ARRB Request for Additional Information and Records No. CIA-10 (Interagency Source Register)

Dear Jeremy:

(U) This is in response to Mr. David Marwell's letter of 17 June 1996 to Mr. John Pereira, in which he asked a number of questions concerning the "Interagency Source Register"; specifically,

- a. What is the function of the register?
- b. When did it begin?
- c. What are the purposes of the register?
- d. Which entity or entities are responsible for operating the register?
- e. Which entity or entities in the intelligence community have made use of it?
- f. To the extent it fell into disuse during the period 1958-1965, what, if any, system replaced it?

(C) Please find enclosed for your review DO Instruction 50-46 entitled, "The Interagency Source Register." This three-page instruction fully answers questions a, c, and d above. With respect to question e, at this time I know of no way of determining exactly which entities within the intelligence community made use of the register. It can be assumed that all such agencies knew about it and used it to some extent. With respect to b and f, we will continue to search for data which will provide answers. We request that the enclosure be returned when the Staff completes its deliberations on this issue.

Dear Ms. Denk:

Reference: (C) ARRB Request No. CIA-10, for information on the Interagency Source Register

(U) The following is responsive to referent request.

(C) The Interagency Source Register (ISR) is simply a device whereby agencies within the intelligence community which recruit or deal with sources of foreign positive intelligence outside the United States try to keep from bumping into each other in the pursuit of such information. It is for the further purpose of ensuring a source cannot gain an unwarranted advantage by dealing with more than one agency. Each agency is responsible for registering an individual as a source with the ISR before using the individual.

(C) The ISR was established in 1957 by the Intelligence Advisory Committee, predecessor to the U.S. Intelligence Board. The ISR was not used extensively during the years 1958-1965 and we know of no system or procedure which took its place.

(C) The first ISR regulations were in the form of basic procedures each agency was to follow, procedures which have gone through a number of reiterations. ARRB staff members have reviewed the classified, current written instruction governing the existence and use of the ISR.
